2. BACKGROUND INFORMATION

- 2.1. The purpose of this request is to seek approval to appoint suitable, qualified, independent technical advisors to undertake a technical review of the exploration data, pilot project results, reservoir interpretation, and key technical assumptions underpinning the proposed development approach associated with the Coal Bed Methane (CBM) project.
- 2.2. The appointment of independent technical advisors is intended to address a recognised internal capability gap within the IDC, in respect of specialised subsurface, reservoir engineering, and CBM-specific expertise required to critically assess the project’s exploration and pilot data. The proposed technical review will therefore provide an informed, unbiased assessment of the quality, reliability, and technical robustness of the data and interpretations generated by the project to date.
- 2.3. Specifically, the independent review will assess matters including, but not limited to, gas content, permeability, reservoir deliverability, flow characteristics, and pilot performance, with the objective of forming a defensible view on the technical viability of the resource and the credibility of the assumptions underpinning future development scenarios. The review is not intended to replace the project proponent’s technical work, but rather to validate key assumptions, identify material risks or limitations, and highlight any data gaps that may require further work prior to progression to subsequent development or investment decision stages.
- 2.4. The outcomes of the technical review will be used to support internal decision-making processes. The work will inform the IDC’s broader due diligence efforts and contribute to a more rigorous assessment of potential technical risk, without constituting an endorsement of the project or a commitment to provide funding or advance the project beyond the current evaluation phase.

3. SCOPE OF WORK/TERMS OF REFERENCE

The appointed bidder should be able to provide the following:

- 3.1. The review should ideally cover, but not necessarily be limited to, the scope of work outlined below. It will be undertaken through a desktop assessment supported, where required, by clarification engagements with the project proponent. The appointed technical advisors will operate independently and objectively, in line with recognised industry standards CBM resource evaluation and development planning.

- 3.2. The purpose of the technical review is to assess the technical robustness, internal consistency, and appropriateness of the exploration data, pilot project results, reservoir interpretation, and proposed development approach for a CBM Project in Botswana. The scope focuses on validation of assumptions, identification of material risks and data gaps, and assessment of readiness to progress to subsequent development or investment decision stages.
- 3.3. Should material deficiencies, inconsistencies, or unsupported assumptions be identified during the review, the advisors will be required to provide clearly articulated recommendations, including prioritised actions required to address such issues. All assessments shall be benchmarked against recognised industry standards and best practices applicable to onshore CBM developments.

3.3.1. Independent Technical Review of CBM Exploration Data, Pilot Performance, and Development Readiness

- Identify additional work programmes or data acquisition activities that could improve technical confidence.
- Highlight any alternative technical approaches or contingencies that warrant consideration.

h) Assessment of LNG Market Interface and Commercialisation Assumptions (Technical Perspective)

- Review the proposed LNG commercialisation pathway from a technical and execution feasibility perspective, including the assumed role of LNG in the overall development plan.
- Assess the technical alignment between forecast gas production profiles and envisaged LNG production volumes, ramp-up timing, and delivery assumptions.
- Review assumptions relating to LNG processing capacity, modularity, scalability, and integration with the proposed wellfield development plan.
- Evaluate whether the proposed LNG solution is technically appropriate given the current level of subsurface confidence, pilot results, and projected deliverability.
- Assess logistical and infrastructure assumptions underpinning LNG deployment, including interfaces with transportation, storage, and downstream delivery, insofar as they affect technical feasibility and operational reliability.
- Identify technical dependencies, constraints, or risks associated with the LNG commercialisation route that could impact development sequencing, capital efficiency, or project timing.
- Assess the robustness of assumptions regarding LNG market access and utilisation strictly from a technical readiness and execution standpoint and performing a high-level market or pricing analysis.
- Highlight any technical sensitivities where LNG-related assumptions materially influence development outcomes and identify areas where alternative technical configurations or staging strategies may warrant consideration.
